WOMEN'S SAFETY IN PUBLIC AND WORK PLACES IN GURGAON

Agenda

- Today, there is certainly more awareness about women safety issues, in the Police, the Judiciary, Administration and among public at large.
- There is also an attempt to create safety infrastructure including legal frameworks to ensure women's safety.
- The Sexual Harassment at the Work Place Act that has come in to effect in 2013 makes it mandatory for organisations to have a policy that promotes a safe workplaces for women.
- With a large number of women coming in and out of the city everyday to work and a large migrant population, Gurgaon is prone to crimes and violence against women.
- The city has taken some steps towards making women safe at the level of the Police, the Traffic Police, the local administration and the civil society. But are these measures adequate? Are enough services in place to help a woman in distress? Does infrastructure promote safety? Are we doing enough as members of civil society to prevent violence against women? These are some real questions that need to be answered.
- The workshop on "Women's Safety at Public and Work Places in Gurgaon" will discuss and deliberate on these issues.

Key Questions...

To be sure, some of the questions that need answers to at the workshop are:

- a. What steps have Gurgaon Police and the civil administration taken to improve women's safety?
- b. Are organisations in Gurgaon complying to Anti Sexual Harassment at the Work Place Act and Rules?
- c. What are some of the private initiatives that address the issue of women safety?
- d. What are safety audits and how do they help in preventing violence against women?
- e. How do women working in the unorganised sector access their rights to freedom from violence?
